Subject: My Late Father Noor Mohammed Lodhia's Investments

Mr. Qader:

By now you've totally ignored all of our emails sent to you in a number of occasions. I am afraid in order to settle my father's investments with you, your brother, and your company and the land purchases to a desirable outcome, I have no course but to strongly suggest to my sister Mehroon that she file for legal and criminal action against you, your brother, and your company in India. I have been persuading her to go via the legal course ever since you have been giving the Lodhia family multiple and ever changing stories. Unlike my siblings, I am not naive and have no faith in you, Mr. Qader. The way I see it is that you are a typical corrupt businessman hiding behind your religious facade. A two-bit scheming confidence trickster. The only way to deal with people like you is to pursue legal action. You can't bribe everybody in India; it is not Pakistan, thank God!!

I am sure you are cocky enough to assume that you can get away with cheating us out of our father's hard-earned income which he invested with you, your brother and your company. As you recently said to my sister on the phone, "no one can touch us in India". Really, Mr. Qader?

My father's rationale for the blind trust in you was that you are a fellow Memon and a muslim. And he assumed that you were an honest man maybe because of the reputation of your father. What a mistake!! Have you ever thought what my excellent father might be thinking from up above? He trusted you with his life savings so that he can leave this world in peace thinking his only daughter will have enough money to live the rest of her life in ease. I've been telling Mehroon to stop waiting and go for criminal action against you, your brother and your company. To offer her a measly return of less than 1% after 12 years is not only an insult but downright crooked in your part.

I strongly urge you to think this through. I personally won't be content only with legal action but I am willing to approach India's Income Tax Department and fill them on your shenanigans. Why would a supposedly "honest" businessman offer lump sum cash in US dollars in a briefcase as you have offered to my elder brother Rafiq when he came to settle the matter in good faith few months back? Why would a supposedly "honest" businessman be afraid to put details on paper or be very, very afraid to discuss those details over the telephone? And how about a tip to USA's Department of Homeland Security for them to look into your business affairs? Luckily, I have lots of good contacts in America who can get me in touch with the right people at the appropriate agencies.

Unfortunately, I wasn't involved with this matter earlier. My father's wishes were that his investments must be distributed to Mehroon and Yousuf ONLY and which you have confirmed in a written letter to Mehroon also. Now because of your "ponzi" schemes you got rest of us involved and trying to make us sign all sorts of papers so that you can save your behind and not have the Indian Revenue Department breathing down your neck. You have given all sorts of excuses to my mother when she was alive. You even told her that the land is not sold, etc. Now, to my utter shock, I've come to know through Mehroon that you have indeed sold some of the land years before my mother died of cancer.

I am really distraught and saddened that you were holding on to whatever monies that land sale had generated. If we had that money when my mother was alive, we could've given her additional medical care at the best hospital in California. I only hope that the Almighty doesn't punish you and your loved ones with some horrendous catastrophies in retaliation. Certainly, you should know as a "practicing" muslim that this kind of story abounds and has happened to folks just like you. It is bad Karma and only a matter of time. Hello riches to rags story!! Ooops, I forgot! You are insured because you are a "good muslim". Don't bet on it!

I am sure you and your brother have swindled many other folks like us. And what surprises me even further is that we all received an email from Mr. Hanif Anver about the virtues of so called "Sharia Law" with regards to interest. How dare he send such crap to us? Instead, he should've sent you an email extolling the virtues of being an honest man and settling the inheritance matter properly. I can cite you numerous Suras and Hadiths to enlighten you. What a typical muslim crock!!! Justify everything in name of Allah and Shariah when it is to your personal benefit. Shame, Shame, Shame.

In closing, I have not even one iota of any hope of decency in your part. Just remember that distance is not going to stop us from claiming the fair share of our dues, no matter how long it takes. We are living in the age of the internet! My dear sister is going to get her money one way or the other. Let us hope this doesn't get extended to the local newspaper stories in your neighbourhood or in the inner circles of the elite class where you hang around. Think about it, Mr. Qader. The "Lodhias" have nothing to lose as it will be your reputation and integrity that will be at stake. For a real estate tycoon of Bangalore, you will soon be known as a petty swindler who never pays back a dead man's money to his only daughter that is living.

Maybe it is time for you to go consult a "Competent Authority" on Islamic religious ethics and morals. I sure hate to write this note, but your irrational and unethical behavior has tempted to speak my mind.

I am forwarding this email to my attorneys as well.

Razzaq Lodhia, Son of Mr. and Mrs. Noor Mohammed Lodhia
